How to download hindi videos In July, the station announced that it would not be renewing its broadcast license, effective October 31,. The license was granted to five different companies:. The stations license was held by South Dakota company Salt Creek Ventures. In September, Salt Creek Ventures was purchased by Clear Channel. The Clear Channel subsidiary of Leisure Concepts, Inc. owns South Dakota and North Dakota stations. Since 1999, the North Dakota radio market has been dominated by Clear Channel. Clear Channel promotes local radio and protects its dominance by refusing to license that "local" to other radio firms. In December, Clear Channel put the South Dakota and North Dakota stations up for sale. The South Dakota and North Dakota media markets are among those that Clear Channel has been unwilling to allow to go to other owners. As part of this restructuring, the company also transferred the stations to Scott Walker, a company owned by Clear Channel in which Clear Channel has an interest in the event of a dissolution. In January, the company announced that the stations had been sold to SW Broadcasting, LLC a subsidiary of Scott Walker Media. In a pre-deal announcement of the transaction, Clear Channel said that the SW Broadcasting entity would retain control of the stations through a special purpose holding company. The company said that the sale was expected to close in June and could be subject to regulatory approval. Cooper Communications had purchased the stations, along with three others, in January, for $ The new company will operate the stations as " Southwest Radio Co." Search form One of the most significant changes under this agreement is that SW Broadcast's name will not be used on the radio stations. The new company will operate the stations as " Southwest Radio Co. It will be owned, managed and operated by SW Broadcasting and will have a broadcast license from the FCC as " The company will be headquartered in Minneapolis. The company will operate the stations under a local marketing agreement with South Dakota-based Scott Walker Media LLC, which was created in in September By the time of the transaction, several other radio stations 82157476af
